

A SUDDEN SUMMONS.

The Joys and Pleasures of a Wedding Are Turned to Sorrow by That Ever Unwelcome Visitor, Death.

One of the saddest deaths it has been the duty of the writer to chronicle in many a day, is that of Mrs. Nicholas Jacobs, which occurred at 8 o'clock last evening, and was as sudden as it was sad. Mrs. Jacobs had not been in good health for the past two or three months, becoming worn out by the constant attention given her husband during his long illness, together with other duties, and some three weeks ago was forced to take to her bed. At that time the attending physicians pronounced her case a most serious one, being a complication of lung and heart difficulties, as well as a general breaking down physically. To those near and dear it was noticeable that there was a gradual failing for two or three weeks, but Mrs. Jacobs insisted that the marriage of her daughter, Miss Katharine, to F. A. Krembs, should take place at the date previously set, and at no time would consent to any change or postponement. Tuesday forenoon Mrs. N. Kalaschinske was attending the patient, and about ten o'clock assisted Mrs. Jacobs from the bed, placed her in a chair and rolled it in the adjoining room while she prepared her bed. As she finished, the young couple returned from the church, and the mother said she would remain in the chair until she could extend congratulations and pronounce her blessing. This she did. Soon afterwards she was taken worse, and in the afternoon her condition was so serious that the evening wedding reception and all festivities were cancelled. She sank constantly thereafter, remaining conscious to the last, and less than a minute before the spirit had taken its flight exclaimed, "I can stand it no longer." The end was peaceful, and was due to heart failure.

Katharine Gross was born at Kallhausen, Alsace-Lorraine, Germany, Feb. 8th, 1847, and was therefore in the 50th year of her age. She came to this country with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Gross, in January, 1866, and they located at once at Poland Corners, town of Sharon. On the 23d of June, 1868, she was married to Nicholas Jacobs, and they came to this city to live, engaging in the hotel business where this office now stands, continuing until 1873, when they removed to Clark street and opened up the present Jacobs House, but which has been enlarged from time to time. Mrs. Jacobs was an untiring worker, a first-class business woman, and to her is due very much for the success and popularity the hotel has always enjoyed. She was a noble woman in every sense of the word, one whose hand was ever outstretched to help the sick and needy, and thousands of charitable acts will stand credited to her upon the books in the great world beyond. It has truly been said that no deserving person ever went to her for assistance and came away empty handed. Mrs. Jacobs was also a progressive woman, in both public and church matters, and at the time of her death was treasurer of the Ladies Aid Society and the cemetery committee connected with St. Stephen's Catholic church, and of which denomination she was a faithful and devout member. She was the mother of seven children, six of whom are living. They are: P. J., N. C. and P. C. Jacobs, Mrs. F. A. Krembs, and Misses Tena and Gertrude, the youngest being fourteen years of age. She also leaves five brothers and three sisters: Richard Gross of Stockton; Victor, Nicholas and Alois of this city and Henry, of Wausau; Mrs. John Khell and Mrs. John Martini, of this city, and Sister Tryphona, (Mary Gross,) of Notre Dame Convent, Milwaukee. All were present except the latter. To the afflicted husband, children, brothers and sisters, the sympathy of the community goes out. The funeral will take place from St. Stephen's church at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, with Solemn Requiem Mass. V. Retlach, Aug. Bischoff, M. Clifford, N. Berens, Eugene Tack and N. Kalaschinske, all members of Branch No. 11, C. K. of W., of which Mr. Jacobs is the vice president, will act as pallbearers.

Lost Their Daughter.

Jennie May, third child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Flury, died at the family home, 209 N. Third street, at fifteen minutes past six o'clock last Monday evening, the result of pneumonia and a complication of other diseases. Jennie was one of the brightest pupils in Miss Finch's grade, First ward school, always standing high in her studies and being very punctual in attendance. Three weeks ago last Friday she was taken sick and failed rapidly thereafter, suffering almost continuously. A brother and three sisters are left to console the parents in their affliction. Funeral services were held at the M. E. church at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. E. W. Requa officiating, interment being in the Episcopal cemetery.

City Caucuses.

Democratic city caucuses to elect delegates to the county convention, to be held Saturday, June 13th, are hereby called to meet in the various wards at half-past seven o'clock on Friday evening, June 12th, 1896, as follows:

First ward, Engine house No. 1.
Second ward, Engine house No. 2.
Third ward, Election booth.
Fourth ward, Okray's Hall.
Fifth ward, Election booth.
Sixth ward, Election booth.

J. J. SLUTTS, Chairman.

A Prominent Visitor.

A party consisting of ex-Senator Warner Miller, K. B. Fullerton and Warner Curtis, of New York and W. A. Russel, of Massachusetts, visited Stevens Point, last Thursday, arriving here in a special car that afternoon. They were accompanied by Geo. A. Whiting, of Neenah, chaplain, and after looking through the paper mills of Whiting and Sherman, took supper at Curran House and spent a couple of hours in the city. They came in over the Green Bay road, making a tour of inspection through Wisconsin, examining its water powers and natural advantages, and their visit here may ultimately prove of benefit to our city. The name of Warner Miller is well known in connection with New York politics, he having served his state as U. S. Senator, and was the unsuccessful candidate for governor against Roswell P. Flower.

Great Wheel Parade.

To all bicyclers, ladies and gentlemen, of our city: An invitation is hereby extended to you to take part in a grand parade with the Woodmen Friday evening, June 12th, at 6:45. Parade will form on public square and move east on Main to Division, then countermarch back to Strong's ave., south to Clark, west to First, north to Main, east to double arch, south to Rink Opera House.

NEARLY ONE THOUSAND

Confirmed in the City and Towns of Hull and Sharon by Bishop Messenger, of the Green Bay Diocese.

Rt. Rev. S. G. Messmer, Bishop of the diocese of Green Bay, arrived in the city on Saturday evening last, and was met at the depot by Rev. W. J. Rice and the trustees of St. Stephen's church and escorted to the parish residence. The next morning, at 10 o'clock, the bishop confirmed a class of 112 persons, most of them girls and boys, but some of them had grown to more mature years. After confirmation ceremonies, the bishop spoke at length to those who had received the sacrament, and in the evening he also delivered an able sermon to a large congregation. Rev. Father Rice was assisted by Rev. Q. Zielinski, of St. Peter's church.

Monday forenoon the bishop confirmed 215 persons at St. Casimir's church, in the town of Hull, and where he was assisted by the pastor, Rev. Father Kaloschinski, the clergyman above named and Rev. J. Westkamp. He was escorted from this city by some thirty members of St. Casimir's Society, mounted on horseback, a brass band, and a number of people in carriages.

At Polonia, Tuesday forenoon, 553 persons were confirmed. The bishop was escorted from Hull, on Monday afternoon, by some 50 horsemen of the Polonia congregation, accompanied by the same band. The church and surroundings at Polonia presented a pretty appearance, an avenue of evergreens extending from the church to the rectory and school, while bunting and Japanese lanterns hung in profusion. In the evening there was a display of fire works in honor of the event. The marshals of escort were Jos. Kosieczkowski and Anton Maslowski. Among the clergy who were there on Monday were, Rev. Father Greubowski, of Polonia; Lugowski, formerly of Junction City; Pescinski, of Menasha; Bourgmeier, of Custer; Kaloschinski, of Casimer, and Podlicki, of Two Rivers.

Re-elected Unanimously.

At the state convention of Catholic Order of Foresters, held at Appleton last week, J. W. Dunegan was again chosen vice chief ranger by a unanimous vote. Mr. Dunegan was not a candidate for re-election, as stated in our last issue, but the delegates would not listen to his withdrawal, and his choice for a second term without opposition is a good endorsement of his past services. P. J. Jacobs and J. W. Dunegan were chosen as alternate delegates to the National High Court, which meets at Columbus, Ohio, next February, and W. H. Carey, of Grand Rapids, was elected as a delegate. The next annual state meeting will be held at Green Bay. The delegates and visitors were royally entertained by the Foresters and citizens of Appleton, and their stay of two days was decidedly pleasant. T. J. Callen, of Milwaukee, was re-elected as chief ranger, and L. Sonntag, of Sheboygan, as treasurer; Gustav Keller, of Appleton, was elected secretary.

GLAD THAT THEY CAME.

Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Depart for Home, and Express Their Appreciation in Various Ways.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., in session for the previous three days in this city, came to a close at 10:30 on Thursday morning, and the Rebekah Assembly adjourned at about the same time. Before adjourning a resolution was introduced and carried authorizing the appointment of a grand lecturer, whose duty it shall be to visit subordinate lodges for the purpose of explaining laws and matters whenever called. This action was taken upon recommendation of ex-Grand Master Mead. Gen. Elliott, of Chicago, addressed the members present after adjournment, and in the evening spoke at Odd Fellows Hall, a number of the delegates remaining in the city to hear him. Most of the delegates, both ladies and gentlemen, left the city on the forenoon and afternoon trains, and the cantons from Superior and Ashland started for home at 1:45 Thursday morning. Wednesday afternoon, after the newly elected officers were installed, Grand Master Harriman announced his appointments as follows: Grand Marshal, C. S. Fuller, Fairview, Wis.; Grand Conductor, F. S. Woodworth, Manawa; Grand Guardian, A. F. Brandt, Sparta; Grand Herald, Wm. Theisen, Milwaukee.

The parade on Wednesday evening was one of the finest ever seen in Stevens Point, and certainly the largest wherein a single society took part. It was led by Gen. F. A. Woodward, assisted by his staff, and including the local marshal, W. F. Owen, and aides, W. W. Taylor and Geo. Urban. Between 400 and 500 Odd Fellows joined in the march, while many of the ladies and old veterans followed in carriages. The Patriarchs Militant, of which between 75 and 100 were in line, made a handsome appearance in their tawny uniforms, and each showed the benefits of the military training he had received. Three bands furnished music along the line of march, the parade being divided into three divisions.

After the parade, the Militant assembled at court house square, where the Decoration of Chivalry was conferred upon Capt. G. Kleck, and Capt. A. J. Wright, of Milwaukee. The first named is assistant commander of Canton Elliott No. 1. Capt. Wright, it is quite certain, has received more Odd Fellows honors than any other young man in the country, being not yet 27 years of age. He is Past Grand of South Milwaukee No. 223, district deputy grand master of No. 223, past chief patriarch of Oak encampment No. 56, a member of Marquette No. 116, Daughters of Rebekah, the present commander of Canton Elliott No. 1, and now a Knight of Chivalry. The ceremony proved very interesting, and the officers and chevaliers were assisted in conferring the degree by Misses Amelia Port, Ethel Rogers, Ethel Murray, and Carrie Skinner and little Florence Gelsler.

After the ceremony the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs assembled at Rink Opera House, where a ball was announced to be given, and soon the spacious hall was packed, making dancing difficult until near the midnight hour, when those who remained had a better opportunity of enjoying themselves, which they did until between two and three in the morning. Excellent music was furnished by the Amphion orchestra, C. D. Hinckley caller.

CONVENTION ECHOES.

Both the Grand Lodge and Rebekah Assembly showed their appreciation of the efforts of our citizens in their behalf, by passing appropriate resolutions of thanks before the hour of adjournment.

Frank W. Harriman, who was elected Grand Master, is one of Appleton's most prominent and promising young men. He was born in that city Sept. 22, 1861, was educated in her public schools, taught school thereafter, and was admitted to the bar in 1883. He served as probate judge for one year, after the death of his father, then entered actively in the practice of law, and was postmaster from 1891 to 1895, being appointed by President Harrison. He is married and has two daughters.

The bunting, trimmings and decorations used by the Odd Fellows have been purchased by the druggists, and were taken down by Paul Roettger and his corps of assistants on Thursday afternoon. To Mr. Roettger is due much praise for the handsome manner in which the arches were trimmed and bedecked, and J. W. Strobe is entitled to like praise for his work at headquarters in Odd Fellows block.

To B. H. Kohorn, R. F. Baker, C. L. Rogers, Dr. Jesse Smith, Geo. Oertel and F. A. Dugen are the people of Stevens Point under obligations; the first four for their success in getting the Grand Lodge here, and to all of them, as well as other members of Shaurette and Stump Lodges, for their untiring work in arranging every detail. The Rebekahs are also entitled to no small amount of praise. A young "sprig" from Milwaukee, as Sam. Ryan would call him, attempted to say something detrimental to Stevens Point, when the place for holding the next annual gathering was under discussion, but he was set down on so suddenly and completely that he thought for a few moments that a St. Louis hurricane had struck the house. And he hasn't been heard of since.

Chas. Barker, the Cream City insurance man and ex-minister, is cordially forgiven for everything that he said in the past. His impression of this "town among the sandhills of Central Wisconsin" changed more rapidly in three days than he had acquired in several years before while doing missionary work, and he was proud to publicly acknowledge his conversion.

The Citizens National kept open between the hours of four and five o'clock, last Wednesday afternoon, to accommodate the delegates. They received orders on the Grand Treasurer, who had deposited his funds therein. The amount thus disbursed was about $3,000.

When last seen, Thursday forenoon, Sam. Shafer, of Colby, had a can of varnish in his possession. He had finished painting the town, he said, and was about to give it the final coat of varnish.

"For twenty-five successive years I have held the office of Grand Treasurer, attending every Grand Lodge," remarked David Adler, of Milwaukee, "and on no occasion have we been entertained as nicely and royally as we have been this time."

"Yes, sir, I attended the last Grand Lodge, one year ago, and with a party of three friends occupied a single room in an attic, and that was the very best we could do at that. The people of Stevens Point do not have attics, it seems to me, as every delegate, and all their friends, have been furnished with fine quarters, many of them as sumptuously furnished as bridal chambers, and they could take their choice of sleeping on the first floor or climbing a single broad stairway. Why shouldn't we be satisfied? The meeting throughout has been perfect." It was W. A. Carleton, commercial agent of the Central at Milwaukee, who expressed himself in words substantially as above.

Sheriff John McKay, of Washburn: There were more Odd Fellows in Stevens Point than I ever saw before. Every man you meet is an Odd Fellow—in spirit, if not in fact—all seeming to have the same kindly feeling toward their guests, and, you bet, everybody is all right.

Benj. Moores, Milwaukee: It is twelve years since I visited Stevens Point before, and am surprised at the great improvements to be seen on all hands. When I say that the hospitality of the town has been even more surprising than her growth, the sentiments of all are expressed, and I wish to acknowledge my obligations.

L. M. Young, Cadott: In this city are the nicest lot of people I ever met, and this is not the first Grand Lodge meeting I have attended, either. Those who managed the affair and provided the entertainment are entitled to everlasting praise, while every citizen seems to be deserving of credit.

John Schenk, of Jefferson: "I have been 'pegging around' for a long time, but never enjoyed myself more, and at last found another good fellow by the name of Schenk." Mr. Schenk is a shoemaker, which accounts for the above expression.

"Last summer when I attended the German editorial gathering in Stevens Point, I had such a good time that I promised to come again. This promise has been kept, and I shall never regret it." Thus spoke J. L. Uttermoehl, of the Fountain City Republican.

The Odd Fellows of Stevens Point feel under lasting obligations to the Grand Rapids and Waupaca bands. The first named arrived in the forenoon on Wednesday, playing a number of pieces on the streets during the day, and both took part in the evening procession. Our neighbors at Waupaca and the Rapids have every reason to feel proud of their excellent bands, and should see that they are encouraged at every opportunity.

"This is my first visit to your city, but I have heard of the town before. Everybody has heard of Stevens Point. Newspaper men generally know a good thing when they see it, and especially kind treatment and hospitality. I hope to be able to visit you again." P. A. Badour, of the Menominee (Mich.) Enterprise, spoke as above.

Wausau Record: The Wausau representatives at the I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge, held at Stevens Point, report it to be the most successful Grand Lodge meeting ever held in the state. The Stevens Point people, to use a slang expression, "threw themselves," and did everything in their power to make it pleasant for their visitors. The city was beautifully decorated with bunting and flags and triumphal arches were to be seen on all the principal streets and thoroughfares of the city. The number of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs in attendance exceeded those of any other such meeting in the history of the state.

Meet at Waupaca.

The Wisconsin State Horticultural Society will meet at Waupaca on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, and the Central company will give a rate of one and one-third fare from all points between Stevens Point and Fond du Lac. Meetings will be held at the Dunes Home Hall and Grand View Hotel, and the two days program promises to be beneficial and interesting, with a large attendance. A. J. Phillips, of West Salem, is the Secretary, of whom any desired information may be obtained.

Where Has He Gone.

A gentleman named D. C. Davenport, of Beaver Dam, arrived in the city on Tuesday evening of last week, and registered at one of the hotels in the city. He came here to attend the Grand Lodge meeting, and was assigned to a room. In the same room there was a cot, occupied by another guest, but the bed which Davenport was to rest upon, remained untouched. This fact was discovered the next day, and now the hotel people are somewhat anxious to know what became of Mr. Davenport, and will consider it a favor if he or his friends will inform them or this office.

Left a Will.

The will of the late G. J. Jackson, of Centralia, has been admitted to probate. He bequeaths 50 shares of the Jackson Milling Co. stock to his adopted daughter, Mrs. Estella M. Paulus, of Marshfield; 30 shares to his sister-in-law, Miss Frances E. Dickerson, of this city; 20 shares to his brother, Simon Jackson, of Downsville, N. Y., and to his wife, her heirs and assigns, all the balance of her property, both real and personal. The will is dated March 11th, 1895, and J. D. Witter, of Grand Rapids, Alvin S. Trow, of Merrillan, and the wife of the deceased are named as executors. Mrs. Jackson is also dead.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

Presented to the Council and Unanimously Disallowed.—Other Business Transacted Friday Evening.

Seven members, of the council, Ald. Karner, Brill, Maine, Gross, Kieliszewski, McCreedy and Phelps, answered to their names when the roll was called at the adjourned meeting last Friday evening. Ald. Piffner appeared and took his seat.

Ald. Maine reported that the city surveyor had been authorized to set stakes on Sawdust street, and finds that the bridge crossing the slough on that street is about twenty feet east of where it should be. A new bridge must be built if sidewalks are constructed on the proper line. The report was upon motion accepted and adopted.

David Velle presented a claim for damages in the sum of $100, charging that he had been injured by falling on the Wisconsin river bridge. On motion the claim was unanimously disallowed. Upon motion the mayor and clerk were authorized to draw an order in the sum of $50.00, in favor of J. A. Walker, for a strip of land used in widening Reserve street. Ald. Brill reported that one of the horse cart horses at engine house No. 1, is in bad condition, and the committee had bargained for another in a trade for difference of $100. The same alderman moved that the salary of Thos. Canley, street commissioner, owing to his excellent services, working day and night, be increased to $50.00 per month from May 1st, until the macadamizing is finished. The motion was carried unanimously. Ald. Piffner moved that the city clerk be authorized to issue orders in payment of macadamizing stone, upon presentation of way bills for same. Carried. The council adjourned to Monday evening, June 15th, at 9:30 o'clock.

The Old Settlers' Picnic

Will be held at Sherman's grove June 18th. A general invitation is extended to all. Bring your baskets and have a good time visiting with the few remaining pioneers, who are fast taking their last and long farewell of those that are near and dear to them upon the shores of time, for the grim ferryman, death, is rapidly taking the few remaining ones across the dark, deep river to that unknown land from whence none ever return. Twenty-four of these have already passed away since our last meeting. All are considered old settlers up to and including 1864. All those whose names are not on the club list, will become members by sending their name, age and address and when they came to this country, to Wm. H. Field, secretary, or S. A. Sherman, president, this city. The program will be one of the best ever presented by the Club, and will include an address of welcome by W. F. Owen. Respectfully,
S. A. SHERMAN.

CHANGES IN TEACHERS.

New Teachers Engaged to Fill Vacancies, and All Janitors Re-engaged for the ensuing year.

The Board of Education met on Monday evening. The members present were A. B. Week, D. A. Agnew, J. R. Congdon, John Cadman, A. J. Kujawa, Thos. McPhail, W. J. Dumbleton, W. F. Cartmill and E. D. Glennon. Bills were allowed as follows:

Communications were read from P. Drake, Hattie C. Wheat, and Sarah Sutton, the two latter tendering their resignations and Mr. Drake setting forth that he finds it impossible to meet expenses and carry out his educational ambition at salary paid, $700 per year. Upon motion the salary was increased to $800 per year. Miss Louise Chase, of Oshkosh, was engaged to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Sutton, first and second grades in the Second ward. Miss Anna Wright, of this city, was engaged as assistant in the third and fourth grades, 4th ward, at $40.00 per month. All the above action was carried by a unanimous vote. The name of Miss Mamie Collins, of this city, was proposed for the fifth grade, 5th ward, but a motion to engage her was defeated by the following vote: Ayes, Glennon, Kujawa, McPhail and Cartmill. Noes, Agnew, Week, Congdon, Dumbleton and Cadman. Miss Thompson, of Liberty Pole, was then engaged for the position, all voting in her favor except Glennon and Kujawa.

Messrs. Cartmill and Dumbleton, the 6th ward members, presented a petition asking that a committee of three be appointed to select a site on the east side of that ward, of not less than one acre, for the erection of a two room school building, and to report at the next meeting of the board. The petition was upon motion accepted, and Messrs. Cartmill, Dumbleton and McPhail appointed as such committee. The clerk was authorized to purchase a copy of the new city directory. Janitors for the ensuing year were re-engaged as follows, and C. H. Mase was authorized to look after the various buildings and grounds during the summer vacation at his regular monthly salary:

Entertained by Teachers.

The teachers of the public schools gave a reception at the High School building last Saturday evening, to the members of the Board of Education and those who in the past had entertained the teachers. The evening was one of the most disagreeable of the season, a light rain storm being followed by a heavy one, and many were forced to forego the pleasure of attending. Most of the members of the School Board were present, as was also Dr. and Mrs. Southwick and Mr. and Mrs. Emmons Burr. Refreshments were served by a committee of the teachers, and the event was a most enjoyable one in all respects.

Settled by the Fistic Route.

Frank Discher, a horse fancier, whose home is in the town of Pike Lake, Marathon county, will not soon forget his experiences while in Stevens Point last week. Wednesday evening he got into an altercation with Geo. Helmski, on Brown street, and received a couple of black eyes. This trouble grew out of a feud of long standing, Discher having accused Helmski's father with stealing a horse blanket and other articles, at one time, but finally settled the matter upon payment of $2.50. When the son met Discher on Wednesday the latter fared badly, but George was brought before Judge Murat, Thursday morning, and fined $5.00 and costs, which amount he readily paid. After thinking the matter over again, however, Helmski seems to have concluded that Discher was not punished in proportion to the fine imposed by the court, and concluded to meet him on the field of battle once more. The two men met that evening near the corner of Clark and Second streets, and after Discher had circled around a telephone pole several times, he was overtaken by Helmski and an additional amount of coloring put on one of his eyes. Chief Kingsbury arrested Helmski and Judge Murat held him for examination in the sum of $75.00, the bond being furnished by Henry Bender. The examination will take place tomorrow.

A structure that Baptists all over the country look at and refer to with pride is the new Tremont temple, which has just been dedicated in Boston. It is not only the home of one of the largest Baptist societies in the world, but it is the hub around which all the eastern affairs of the denomination revolve. The new building cost $541,000 and is the costliest free church in America.

For more than a century and a half Boston has not been without a Tremont temple for any length of time. The first one was built on the site occupied by the present structure, and when that was destroyed by fire in 1879 another one was erected to replace it. This in turn was burned two years ago, but the ashes of the building made famous by so many notable revivals were hardly cold before plans had been begun for the construction of the present temple, which is much handsomer and more imposing than any of its predecessors.

The striking and attractive facade of the new temple rises from Tremont street, almost directly opposite the Park street entrance to the common, which is one of the busiest spots in the heart of Boston. Past its wide swinging doors the restless feet of many thousands tramp from sunrise to midnight. It is among the people and for the people, and the very name is dear to Boston folk.

Looking at the six story sweep of the front, with its severely simple but somewhat unusual style, there is nothing to indicate or suggest the ornate beauty of the interior. The architecture is of the Florentine renaissance style, and the materials used are light brick and sandstone. The front elevation is modeled on the lines of the doges palace in Venice. There are three big entrances to the temple, opening directly from the sidewalk. Those on the side lead up a flight of stairs to the lobby of the main auditorium, and the center one is also connected with the lobby by two flights of stairs, but leads also to the smaller hall, which is located under the main one.

The big auditorium, which will comfortably seat 3,000 people, is beautiful indeed. The floor dimensions are 72 by 135 feet, and there is a space of 56 feet from the floor to the paneled dome. A balcony and a gallery surround three sides of the hall, and on the other side is a mammoth platform adorned by a beautiful bronze lectern standing on a marble pedestal, the gift of the Knights Templars to Dr. Lorimer. Above the platform is the choir gallery, and rising back of that is tier on tier of the ornamental pipes of the huge organ with which the church has been equipped.

In the whole auditorium there is not a single pillar to obstruct the view, the roof of the vast hall being supported by huge steel girders, which are hidden by the ceiling. The color scheme of the whole interior is exceptionally artistic. The walls on the first floor are a rich Pompeian red; in the balcony and gallery they are a warm buff, while under the windows they are a pale green. There are 12 of these windows, each enclosed by pilasters and arches. They are of stained glass, the designs representing the 12 apostles. In the space at the top of the windows are inscribed the names of 24 men who have played prominent parts in the history of the Baptist church.

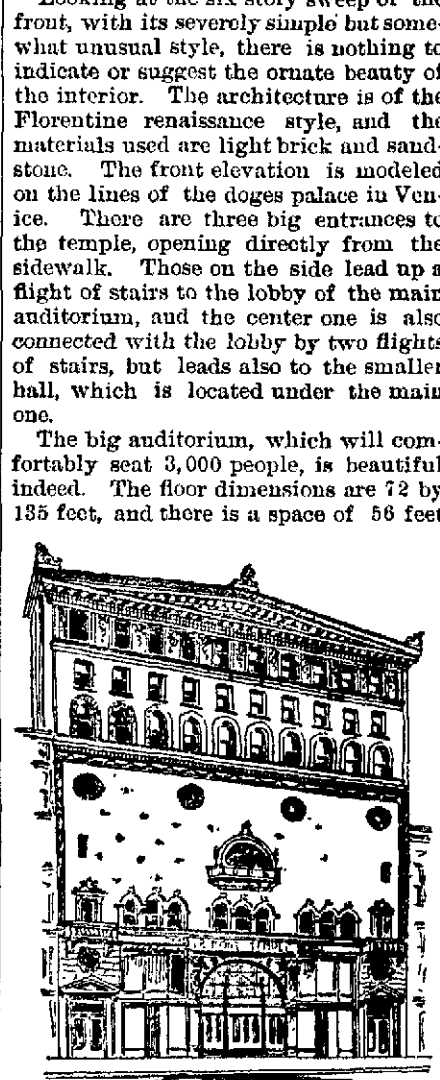

The ceiling is one of the most beautiful features about the structure. It is divided into deep, octagonal panels, between which are large pendants. In the center is a panel much larger than the rest, with a gold sunburst in the middle. There are four rectangular panels around it, in which are ventilators. The ceiling is done in white and gold. The auditorium is lighted by a big central chandelier of 40 lights and by 23 smaller chandeliers of 12 lights each depending from the ceiling at various points. Altogether there are 500 lights in the temple.

Over the platform rises a coffered arch, which supports the choir and organ lofts.

To the right of the platform is a door leading to the deacons' room and to the robing rooms for candidates for baptism. Beyond this room is the baptistery, entered by marble steps and provided with a gently sloping floor. The tank is a good big one, lined with enameled terra cotta, and will contain about 2,800 gallons of water.

Instead of pews the auditorium is furnished with big, wide, leather covered chairs that look particularly easy and inviting. There are two other halls in the building—one called Lorimer hall, which takes the place of the famous Meigs hall, and the other, Chipman hall. The offices in the upper stories are occupied by Baptist societies.

MAINE'S HAUNTED TOWN.

Nearly Every Other House in Easton Has a Ghost of Some Kind.

It is doubtful if any town in all New England has more ghosts and haunted houses than Easton, Me. It may well be called a haunted town. Although the citizens are sensible and well to do farmers, with all sincerity and almost to a man they vouch for the truth of many tales of remarkable and startling supernatural visitations.

For years one of the houses in the center of the town has stood vacant. Several attempts have been made to occupy it, but no one has ever succeeded in remaining within the fated walls for any length of time. One brave and skeptical youth recently determined upon an investigation, and as he is the son of one of the first families and tells his story openly it is believed in implicitly by all Easton people.

The first night after he had gone to bed, leaving the light burning, the shade of a great dog came into the room right through the closed door. Advancing to the bedside, the canine specter regarded him savagely. He started up, and the phantom dissolved into thin air.

But the courage of the investigator failed him not, and he determined to brave it out. Before he could get to sleep, however, a woman all in white, with disordered black hair hanging over her face, made her appearance, weeping and wringing her hands. This vivid apparition was accompanied by still more gruesome signs from below. The heavy clanking of a chain reverberated through the still house, and soon deep groans were heard from various points. By this time he was thoroughly frightened, and getting out of bed he went down to the dining room, where he remained the rest of the night listening to the noises made by his ghostly companions. The house has never been entered since.

Another Easton man of undoubted veracity claims to have seen a phantom woman in broad daylight when the sun was shining brightly and no thoughts of the ghostly were in his mind. It was in his own home, too, where all was cheerful and nothing existed to put him in a morbid state. She had a remarkably white face, luminous dark eyes, and masses of dark hair hung in wild disorder about her face. He raised his eyes and saw this phantom advancing toward him. So real did it seem that he thought she was a mortal woman. He rose and stepped toward her, when she gave him one long, searching look and vanished into empty space. The piercing glance of those eyes, which, he says, seemed to penetrate his very soul, haunts him still, although he never has had a repetition of the ghostly visitant.

HANGED TO MUSIC.

The Doomed Man Sang "I Want to Be an Angel" With the Crowd.

"In the early days of Wyoming, when there were but a few churches and many infractions of law, a man of the name of Barstow, who never knew fear and was a devout Christian, was elected to the office of sheriff," said a citizen of that state recently. "Soon after Barstow entered upon the duties of his office a man was convicted for a capital crime.

"The fact that there was no minister within reach preyed upon the mind of the sheriff, who undertook to supply the lack by holding an hour's Bible reading in the condemned man's cell and praying with him. As the time for the hanging approached Barstow became possessed with the fear that he had not acquitted himself of the spiritual responsibility devolving upon him and devised a programme that was new and unique. After the victim of the law's mandate was placed upon the platform and everything was in readiness the sheriff prayed long and fervently. Then he called for some one to start a hymn, and a man near the platform began the only one he knew, 'I Want to Be an Angel,' in which the prisoner joined.

"As the last verse was sung the sheriff busied himself adjusting the noose, and immediately upon its conclusion the trap was sprung."—Washington Star.

Eighteen Babies at a Bail.

M. and Mme. X., when they returned to their residence earlier than they were expected from a ball at the Elvise, found, to their astonishment, that their three servants and the two children had disappeared.

On questioning the concierge and threatening to send for the commissary of police, the parents learned that in their absence the servants had gone off to a popular dancing room and taken the children with them. M. and Mme. X., still in evening dress, immediately drove in their carriage to the address given.

At the door of the dancing saloon they met the man who receives the money, and he evidently took in the situation.

"Rassurez yourselves, monsieur and madame," he said, "and kindly step this way."

The man led the way to a large, well lighted and warm room, in which were 18 babies fast asleep upon benches. They were under the care of an old woman, and M. and Mme. X. had no difficulty in picking out those which belonged to them.—Paris Correspondent.

Mr. Ruskin's Sermon.

It is, or used to be, the heart's desire of nearly every Scottish parent that one son of the family should be a minister, or, as they say, "wag his paw in a pulpit."

Perhaps it was owing to some such feeling as this that Mr. Ruskin's father and mother were most anxious he should enter the church.

Years afterward, when the son had grown famous as a writer on art, his father declared he would have been a bishop by that time had he taken holy orders.

When Ruskin was a child, however—and there may have been talk at home of what he was to be when a man—he did preach at least one homily.

The little boy got a red cushion, and then, standing up and thumping it, he delivered this sermon, "People, be good."

And an excellent sermon too.—Pearson's Weekly.

House of Commons "Balls."

Two rather good "balls" are attributed to the late Sir George Campbell. On one occasion he had been calling attention in the house of commons to some abuse in Indian administration and proceeded to observe that he had further revelations to make concerning other scandals in connection with which this one was "a mere flea bite in the ocean." Another time, when speaking about military affairs in India, he declared that "the pale face of the British soldier was the backbone of our Indian army."—London Spectator.

Hunting a Bear.

In his study of birds Audubon spent much of his life with the Indians, and he often joined them in their sport. His journal contains accounts of many an adventure with his savage friends. The bear hunt which he describes was made near the Mississippi, in Arkansas or Missouri. I was invited by three hunters to a bear hunt. A tall, robust, well shaped fellow assured me that we should have some sport that day, for he had discovered the haunt of a bear of large size, and he wanted to meet him face to face. We four started to see how the man would fulfill his boast.

About half a mile from the camp he said he perceived the tracks of the bear, though I could see nothing, and we rambled on through the canebrake until we came to an immense decayed log, in which he said the bear was.

I saw the man's eye sparkle with joy. His rusty blanket was thrown off his shoulders, and his brawny arms swelled with blood as he drew his scapling knife from his belt with a flourish which showed that fighting was his delight.

The hunter told me to climb a small sapling, because a bear cannot climb this, while it can go up a large tree with the nimbleness of a squirrel. The two other Indians seated themselves at the entrance, and the hero went in boldly.

All was silent for a few moments, when he came out and said the bear was dead, and I might come down. The Indians cut a long vine, went into the hollow tree, fastened it to the animal, and, with their united force, dragged the bear out. I really thought that this was an exploit.

Steel Hardening.

Another steel hardening process is announced as having been introduced at the famous French steel and iron works of Creuzot, a process based upon the fact, well known, that gas, under great heat, deposits carbon in solid form, upon this depending its light effects, and also the formation of the so called rotors graphite, a thick covering of pure carbon on the walls of gaslight rotors, the gas that strikes the walls depositing part of its carbon upon them. Hardening iron and steel plates formerly consisted in covering the plates with layers of coal and heating them till they glowed. In the new process two plates are put into a furnace, one on each side of the other, with a hollow space between on this space made gas tight by means of yedbestos packing put on around the edges and the plates heated redhot, while a stream of gas is poured into the hollow space indicated. The carbon thrown back by the gas is readily taken up by the glowing plates until they are quickly covered and the depth of this carbon covering of is regulated by the amount of gas again on ted. In order to secure regular and will form action during the process and the vent the pipes that carry the gas to the hollow space from absorbing any carbon they are insulated in other through which water is constantly lating.

Kind Words Are Spoken.

Many of our readers, especially among Odd Fellows, will remember A. J. Langworthy, of Milwaukee, member of the first Grand Lodge organized in this state, and who visited us last week. In a letter addressed to B. H. Kohorn, chairman of our local executive committee, he speaks as follows: The constant and unremitting cares which claimed all your attention during the session of the Grand Lodge at Stevens Point, did not allow me even time to express my offers of his age pastures. His ability to treat chronic diseases has been most thoroughly demonstrated to the people throughout the state.

ARE VICTORS STILL.
 Stevens Point Base Ball Boys Win From the Grand Rapids Nine, and the Chicago Maroons.

The Stevens Point Association nine played an excellent game at the fair grounds, last Thursday afternoon, and the sport was witnessed by a good crowd of people, including those who paid the regular admission fee, passed in on membership tickets or jumped the fence to save a quarter and beat the management. The visiting team was also a strong one, much stronger than when they played here the Sunday before. Strong batting gave the local and visiting clubs four runs each in the first and fourth innings. The pitchers on both sides did clever work, but the chief feature of the game was Quinn's throwing and batting. The result was 11 to 6, in favor of Stevens Point. The players and positions were as follows:

STEVENS POINT	GRAND RAPIDS
Blencoe, catcher	Demitz, pitcher
Riddell, pitcher	Baudette, catcher
Corcoran, 1st base	Nash, 2nd base
Krombs, 2nd base	Teimer, 3rd base
Springer, 3rd base	Miller, 4th base
Faller, 4th base	Shortstop, 5th base
Ash, left field	Monter, center field
Quinn, center field	Bolan, right field
Quinn, center field	Archie, left field

Score by Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Stevens Point	1	0	1	2	0	2	0	2	0-11
Grand Rapids	0	0	1	1	0	1	0	0	0-6

MAROONS ARE BEATEN.

A combination styling themselves the Chicago Maroons, and traveling rather on their nerve than their ability to play ball, crossed bats with the Association nine, Sunday and Monday afternoons. The attendance the first day was good, as the so-called players from the windy city were pronounced as being up-to-date. Those present, however, were greatly disappointed as the Maroons showed very poor work all around, both at the bat, in the box, on bases and in their fielding. The score on Sunday was as follows:

STEVENS POINT	MAROONS
Quinn, catcher	Nordog, pitcher
Tallie, pitcher	Brenner, catcher
Benham, 1st base	Lace, 2nd base
Strong, 2nd base	Long, 3rd base
Krombs, 3rd base	Miller, 4th base
Springer, 4th base	Shortstop, 5th base
Faller, 5th base	Birdville, left field
Fluch, right field	Mogelbad, center field
Ash, left field	Simon, right field
Quinn, center field	Kinnam, left field

Score by Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

The game on Monday resulted in another defeat for the Chicago team. But five innings were played, and the score stood 4 to 1. The weather was bad, cold and wet, and the crowd was small. Baxter, for the home nine, made a fine double play, and Frank Springer took the place of F. A. Krombs. Ennor, as umpire, was knocked out in the first round, and Ingchart, assistant manager of the Maroons, rendered the decisions.

—Charles, the twelve year old son of Chief Train Dispatcher H. Mohle, met with an accident yesterday that may permanently cripple him. He held a hatchet in his hand and was leisurely swinging it to and fro when the sharp blade struck him on the knee, just aside the knee cap, making quite a gash and letting out a small quantity of water from under the cap. Fears are entertained that the mishap will leave the boy with a stiff knee. Dr. Southwick is attending the case.

—No. 201, a locomotive owned by the Central company, is now on one of the side tracks east of the round house, in a more or less dilapidated condition. Engineer Jas. McAdam and fireman Chas. McGinnity left here on 201 last Saturday night, hauling a freight to Chippewa Falls, and when near Elkhart station, Clark county, the main axle connecting the center drive wheels broke. Luckily the train was running but six or eight miles an hour, and was stopped before any great damage resulted. In the excitement, however, Mr. McGinnity jumped out the cab window, quite severely bruising one of his limbs.

Woodland Park Opening.

There will be a grand informal opening of Woodland Park, tomorrow evening, between the hours of 6 and 10 o'clock. Manager Ennor says that the public are cordially invited to attend and inspect what has been done in the way of improvements thus far. The entire park will be lighted by artificial lights. Rare sports and amusements will take place, such as boat races, swimming races, pie-eating races, walking pole races, broom races, foot races for old and young, high jumping, long jumping,—in fact the entire evening will simply be one round of pleasure; also the most novel effect of balloon racing ever attempted will take place on the "Old Wisconsin." The Amphion band will discourse sweet music during the entire evening. Admission, free. Hacks and busses will run from Main street and steamers will run from foot of Clark street every 20 minutes.

Storm in Stockton.

A storm swept over a portion of the town of Stockton, at about 6 o'clock, last Saturday evening, but although quite heavy at some points, did much less damage than was to be expected. Much hail and rain accompanied the wind and scores of trees were blown down or uprooted. John Kussman seems to have been the heaviest loser, so far as a reporter of this paper, who visited the scene on Sunday, could observe. The roof of his large barn was blown off, and several outbuildings were torn away. Boards from the barn were picked up fully a quarter of a mile away. Chas. Puls, another farmer, lost one side of his house, and the barn of Emil Ingerson was struck by lightning, but only slightly injured.

BENEATH A FLORAL BELL.

Katharine Jacobs and Fritz Krombs Were Joined in Wedlock.—A Pretty Marriage Ceremony.

St. Stephen's Catholic church on Clark street, was the scene of another pretty marriage ceremony, at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. The contracting parties were Miss Katharine Angela Jacobs and Mr. Fritz Alexander Krombs. At a few minutes after 9 o'clock the bride entered the church, leaning upon the arm of her father, N. Jacobs, and they were preceded by the ushers, Alex Krombs, Jr., D. A. Taylor, Anton Krombs and F. A. Bull, behind whom marched the sweet maid of honor, Loretta Gross, of Chippewa Falls. At the chancel rail they were met by the groom and best man, Emil A. Krombs. As the bridal party entered the church, the Eintrachts Verein sang "Trauung's Lied," a German song written and set to music especially for this occasion by Prof. L. A. Schidlo, this taking the place of the usual wedding march. The young couple and their attendants proceeded at once to the foot of the altar, where the impressive marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Rice, assisted by Rev. E. P. Lorigan, of Lanark, and Rev. J. A. Bourgmeier, of Custer. After the ceremony, Father Rice addressed the young couple with words of christian advice. Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the pastor, with Father Bourgmeier as deacon and Father Lorigan as sub-deacon, and during the services the young couple sat or knelt beneath a handsome floral bell. The altars, railings, etc., were handsomely bedecked with flowers. Part of the mass music was by Mozart and part by Wiegand. "O Sanctissima," by the Eintrachts Verein, and solos and duets by Misses Ella Corridon, Elta O'Keefe, Mrs. J. H. Moffit, N. J. Nickels and P. J. Jacobs were especially pleasing and well rendered. As the bridal party marched out, Gerlie Jacobs and Clara Krombs strung white ribbon along the center aisle and flowers were showered from the organ loft above.

The bride was dressed in white organdie, with spangled net trimmings and veil, and looked very pretty. The little maid of honor wore muslin du Soir, and the gentlemen were all attired in conventional black. After the ceremony, which was witnessed by a large number of relatives, friends and acquaintances, the bridal party proceeded to the Jacobs House, where they will make their home for the present.

The young couple are so well and favorably known by nearly every person in the city, that it is scarcely necessary to say even a few kind words in their behalf. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Jacobs, is an excellent young lady and has hundreds of friends among our citizens, old and young. The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Krombs, is a bright, energetic young man, and for the past two or three years has looked after the books in the C. Krombs & Bro. hardware store. Both were born and raised in Stevens Point, and after finishing their education here, attended college at Notre Dame, Ind., the latter graduating from the commercial course. That uninterrupted happiness in youth, followed by prosperity and blessings in middle life, and contentment and peace in old age, may be theirs, is the wish of THE GAZETTE.

Among the relatives from outside the city who came to attend the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gross and Misses Julia, Anna and Tony Hoellinger, of Wausau; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gross and daughters, Misses Lillie and Loretta, of Chippewa Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gross and Misses Mary and Maggie Gross, Stockton; Peter Trierwiler and Miss Kate and Peter Trierwiler, Jr., Sharon.

A Foot Taken Off.

Fred. Crane, a switchman in the Central yards and one of the most popular men employed by the company, met with a serious misfortune, last Thursday night at about 10 o'clock. He was at work in what is known as the "field," and was engaged in coupling an old fashioned one car supplied with a Janney coupler to a W. C. box car, the latter equipped with a common drawbar. He had gone between the cars and made the coupling and in stepping out his foot was either caught by a splinter on the rail or some other obstruction, so that his right leg was thrown under one of the flanges, crushing the foot and ankle. Frank Parker was but a few car lengths distant at the time, and hearing Mr. Crane's cries ran to his assistance. A number of others were on hand in a moment, among them being S. J. Campbell, B. F. Bowen, John Madden and Jake Schall, and they quickly placed the injured man on a board, carrying him to his home at 1204 Michigan avenue by this means. Mr. Parker summoned Drs. Southwick, Walters, Atwell and Wheat, the doctors agreeing that it was necessary to amputate the foot just above the ankle, which was done immediately after their arrival. Dr. Southwick taking charge of the work and the others assisting. Although Fred. lost a large quantity of blood and is therefore quite weak, he believes in keeping a "stiff upper lip" and is by no means inclined to surrender the battle of life. He has followed railroad work for many years, serving as a locomotive fireman before coming here five years ago last winter. He owns a very pretty home and two acres of ground on Michigan avenue and his family consists of a wife and four children.

FINISHED HIS WORK.

The Report of the Expert Accountant on the Books of the Commercial Bank is Not Favorable.

As stated in our last issue, the report of Geo. H. Cronyn, the expert accountant employed to examine the Commercial bank books, has been finished. It is a voluminous affair, composed of over two hundred pages. The bank closed its doors on the 30th of March, 1895, and at that date the accountant finds the resources were $175,307.87. Of that sum he classes $26,841.50 as good, $9,111.77 as doubtful, $88,767.05 as good and doubtful, $48,002.54 as bad and $2,406.27 as rejected. On the same date the total liabilities of the bank are stated to have been as follows:

Capital	$60,000 00
Surplus	.....
Undivided profits	461 47
Due depositors	80,914 88
Re-discounts	14,038 48
Bills payable	17,516 23
Total	$173,531 06

In conclusion the following recapitulation of the condition of the bank on the dates named is given:

Capital Impaired.	Deficit.
December 31, 1888.....$50,075 85
December 31, 1889.....50,371 58
December 31, 1890.....806,216 04
December 31, 1891.....45,936 81	72,351 28
December 31, 1892.....7,183 74	6,488 42
December 31, 1893.....57,461 01
March 30, 1895.....

The report concludes: "The statement of the 1st of November, 1888, shows the bank to have been practically insolvent on that day, the date of its incorporation as a state bank. The above summary shows no improvement in its original condition. Its continued existence for a term of eight years, therefore, seems to have depended wholly upon an over confidence public in the previous established credit of its management for solvency."

Kind Words Are Spoken.

Many of our readers, especially among Odd Fellows, will remember A. J. Langworthy, of Milwaukee, member of the first Grand Lodge organized in this state, and who visited us last week. In a letter addressed to B. H. Kohorn, chairman of our local executive committee, he speaks as follows: "The constant and unrelenting cares which claimed all your attention during the session of the Grand Lodge at Stevens Point, did not allow me even time to express my sentiments to you in regard to the splendid reception given us, the members of the session, by yourself and committee. Individually, I cannot let the event pass without saying that at no convocation of the Grand Lodge of the State of Wisconsin, since its inauguration, have they been tendered such a greeting and splendid ovation as at Stevens Point, and I can vouch for many others of the old members having spoken kind words, of your unceasing labor to make all happy and pleased with the entertainment during the hours of recess. Indeed, I can go still further and say through observation and questioning that not only the rank and file of the Grand Lodge were pleased, but even the critical Rebekahs, with one accord, said "We never before had such a nice time." Thus your arduous labors are having goodly returns, and with pleasure I send them."

Death Came Suddenly.

Mrs. Arnold Shannon died very suddenly at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Plaisted, at McMill, last Wednesday. She had not been in good health for a long time, being subject to sinking spells, and it was while in one of these that she passed away, and before her mother who was present at the time, could realize her serious condition. Dr. Wheat was summoned, but the lady had been dead an hour before he reached the premises. The deceased was twenty-five years of age and had always resided at McMill. A husband and two small children are left. Mr. Shannon is a foreman at the Wisconsin River Paper Co. mills. The funeral took place on Friday.

CANDIDATES FOR COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE GRAND ARMY.

Colonel Ballou of Rhode Island and Colonel Linehan of New Hampshire Already in the Field—Belief That an Eastern Man Will Be Elected.

The annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is to be held at St. Paul next September, and a commander in chief is to be elected to succeed Commander Ivan N. Walker, who now holds the office. As the west has been honored for two years in succession, Commander Walker coming from Indiana and Commander Lawler from Illinois, it is generally conceded that an eastern man will be elected this time. Already two eastern candidates are in the field, and others will doubtless come to the front in time long.

One of the most prominent men yet mentioned for the office is Colonel Daniel R. Ballou, who is past commander of the department of Rhode Island and one of the most active as well as influential Grand Army men in the country. He has the official backing and endorsement of his state, and the department council of Rhode Island recently appointed a committee to manage his campaign.

Colonel Ballou enlisted in 1862 as a private in the Twelfth Rhode Island volunteers and served with his regiment in the Ninth army corps under Burnside in the Army of the Potomac. His regiment was conspicuously engaged in the battle of Fredericksburg, and Mr. Ballou was in the thickest of the fighting. Afterward, during the Kentucky campaign in 1863, he saw a lot of active service and was promoted to a lieutenant.

On his return home he was commissioned as a colonel of one of the regiments then organized in expectation of further active service. The war came to a close, however, before his regiment was called to the field.

In civil life Colonel Ballou has been prominent for many years. He is a lawyer by profession and one of the leading members of the Rhode Island bar. He served for four years as member of the city council of Providence, during two years of which time he was president of the board of aldermen. He was clerk of the county court for eight years and a representative in the Rhode Island state legislature for six years.

The department of New Hampshire also has a candidate. He is Colonel John C. Linehan of Penacook, who, as past junior vice commander in chief, is widely popular in Grand Army circles. He has the endorsement of his state organization and has been promised the support of many prominent members in other states.

Colonel Linehan was born in Ireland in 1849, but has been a resident of New Hampshire since boyhood. He has been active in Republican politics since the war and has held several municipal offices in Concord. In 1875 he was one of the charter members and the first commander of W. I. Brown post, 31, and he has served two terms as president of the New Hampshire Veterans' association. He has also taken a prominent part in the work of the Gettysburg Memorial association. He is insurance commissioner of New Hampshire and a trustee of the Loan and Trust bank of Concord.

The present membership of the Grand Army is about 360,000. The first commander in chief was Stephen A. Hurlbut of Illinois, who was elected at the first national encampment, which was held in Indianapolis in 1866. He was succeeded by General John A. Logan, who was fairly idolized by the veterans, and who served three terms. General Barnside of Rhode Island followed Logan and served two terms. Next came Charles Devens, Jr., of Massachusetts, who was afterward attorney general in the cabinet of President Hayes.

Among other prominent men who have held the position are Russell A. Alger of Michigan and the late Governor Hartranft of Pennsylvania and Lucius Fairchild of Wisconsin. Since 1878 no commander in chief has served more than one term.

TRUE FOOD OF FISH.

A SLIGHT UNFOLDING OF WHAT ARE THE WONDERS OF NATURE.

Oysters Cannot Be Fastened—Pastures of the Sea—How Do Frogs Swimming Fish Exist?—Minute Animal Life in the Water—The Rearing of Trout.

In regard to fish, and particularly their food, the last word has not by any means been presented. If by means of fish culture some comprehension has been gained of rearing trout, what we know about the salmonidae is not to be applied to the nutrition of all other fish. The error as to the feeding of oysters, or what is called the fattening of them, by scattering meal in the harbors where the mollusks have been kept is the most absurd of practices. It is questionable whether there is any fat at all in an oyster and whether he can under any circumstances increase his stock of condensed hydrocarbons. He feeds, of course, under certain circumstances and voraciously, and increases in size and meat and becomes corpulent, but he does not fatten, as would a pig.

The Spectator, whose articles on natural history are as intelligent as they are practical, shows what it designates as the "invisible food of fish." If we get an inkling as to the river in which fish feed, the problem of the free ranging sea fish is not so readily determinable. In the rivers running through comparatively narrow banks there must be always a certain amount of plant life. These are the pastures, in which grow the innumerable small crustaceans, or minute forms, on which the river fish can feed. But at sea this is by no means the case. If on the coasts there is a marine vegetation, at a certain distance from the shore there is no such growth.

Draw a bucket of water from the Atlantic ocean, and there are to your eyes no floating organisms in it, and yet there may be innumerable fish in good condition found in the same open water. The anadromous fish do not apparently move far away from the mouths of the rivers at whose sources they were born, but in the ocean there are countless fish, pelagic ones, that move where they list and keep in good condition. If there is nothing visible in the water of the ocean, it cannot, however, be a foodless waste. We cannot understand what is growth in fish, four footed animal or in a fish without being positive that increase in size comes from absorption of food. Something that takes on additional weight and size never came from nothing.

When certain sea fish are caught near the shore, as is the cod, or the bluefish, or the striped bass, these being carnivorous, we know on what they had been feeding. There would be very many more lobsters if there were not so many cod, and, as to menhaden, innumerable would be their shoals if it were not for the hungry bluefish.

How explain for the smaller fish, such as the herring, and finding it at certain seasons in its prime and fattest condition? If we can understand the movements of a school of herring, moving along in a solid phalanx and sometimes at a high rate of speed, we could understand why there is no opportunity for them to stop and feed.

The explanation why certain fish keep at certain periods of the year in good condition is because salt water, transparent as it may seem to us to be, abounds with food. These creatures, microscopic though they may be, nature supplies in limitless quantity for the support of the fish. We know that in parts of the ocean frequented by the whales the only food of certain of these huge cetaceans is what is known as "brit," and these are small aquatic creatures which are found in incalculable quantities. The whale, then, may be said to live at times on "a sea of soup" and has only to open its mouth, strain out the water and swallow its food.

There are innumerable other microscopic creatures in the water of the sea which support the fish. They are like the motes in the air. These minute creatures are endowed with a marvelous fecundity. There is one known to scientists as the cyclops, which in the year produces as many as 42,000 young. It may be remarked here that nature is always on the watch to prevent extermination, so that when any one of its creatures is likely to be imperiled it endows it with a marvellous fecundity. But then, again, what feeds these small forms and perpetuates them? Nature here again shows her great economic process. All these microscopic forms exist in the refuse carried into the sea and thrown on it. If they assimilate this waste and thrive on it, they again give new life to the fish which devour them, and thus the cycle of existence is ever going round and round.

The Germans, in their fish culture studies, have put in prominence what they designate as the intensive process. The motto itself is rather far-fetched, and not readily understandable. The idea is rather one meaning the condensation of the work of fish culture, or that within certain limits, represented by a pond, there ought to be found all the food young fish might want. The advocates of this system strongly urge the cultivation of plant life in ponds and the growth of crustaceans which thrive on this vegetable life. In a recent lecture on fish culture, given in London by Mr. Armstrong, the necessity was urged of making separate ponds, growing weeds and plants there, in which the millions of entomostracans might increase and serve as food for the young trout. Formerly it was believed in Germany that carp were exclusively vegetarian, and accordingly carp ponds were drained and planted with rye as carp food. It was thought that the carp ate the grain. This carp took to the grain, not for the vegetable substance in it, but because it was a harbinger of innumerable small crustaceans.

English experts are answerable for this statement—that trout fed on worms grow slowly; others, fed on minnows, did better, but those fed on insects grew twice as fast.—New York Times.

A Youthful Epicure.

Some years ago, when the W. W. Astors were living in New York, Mrs. Astor gave a lunch party to a number of little girls who were friends of her own little daughter, then aged about 5. After the entertainment was over one little fair haired maiden was wishing the hostess goodbye when Mrs. Astor said:

"I hope you have had a pleasant time, dear."

"Oh, yes," was the answer, "only the peas were not cooked enough!"—New York Journal.

Life Is a Game.

"Life," said the sententious young man, "is like a game of cards."

"It is more like a game of chess to me," said the man who rents. "I move once a year."—Indianapolis Journal.

AFTERWARD.

When you've married Maud Muller and settled down, And all of her folks live with you in town; When you've duly indorsed her papa's note, And loaned Brother Johnny your Sunday coat; When the brand new trousers you haven't paid for, Have been altered for him more for mother-in-law— Don't blame matrimony. There's nothing wrong. For surely it is a grand, sweet song.

CHORUS.

A grand, sweet song. A grand, sweet song. Back to the wedding bells' ding, dong! Back to the wedding bells' ding, dong! Hurrah for the words of the thoughtful gent And his song of genuine sentiment!

When you go for a fish on a dear friend's yacht And manage to hook a fat jack pot, And fill your bins with liquid bait And are borne back home in royal state, And Maud, who's waiting there all the time, Just rolls up her sleeves and speaks not in rhyme— Don't blame matrimony. There's nothing wrong. Indeed, indeed, 'tis a grand, sweet song.

When to bed you have put your little brood, And you long for innocuous despatch: When you see Tommy kick, yell and toss As he tries to digest a toy tin horse, And baby, who's not so softly coo, Busts forth in a regular hubbub— Don't blame matrimony. There's nothing wrong. Oh, yes, it is a grand, sweet song! —Richmond Dispatch.

AT THE AQUARIUM.

A Surprise For a Man Not Familiar With Bullfrog Characteristics.

A near-sighted stranger who saw a bullfrog standing on its hind legs and resting its fore feet against the glass front of one of the tanks in the aquarium stopped to look at it. It was a big bullfrog, one that would measure about a foot extended, and it stood there as motionless as an image except for the slight but regular movement that respiration imparted to its expansive throat.

The stranger was not an expert in frogs, but he could see that this was a fine bullfrog. It looked as though it had been standing there for a month and was going to stand there in just that attitude till next Fourth of July, and he was interested. He drew nearer to examine it. His hat brim touched the front of the tank, and he took his hat off so that he could get closer to the glass.

He saw the broad, flat top of the bullfrog's head just above the surface of the water, with the eyes projecting like dormer windows. Just below the water he saw the frog's great mouth, running around so far that he almost wondered, as many people had wondered before, whether the top of the frog's head wasn't held on by a hinge at the back. He counted the toes on the frog's fore feet, which rested against the glass, and found that they numbered four each. Descending to the legs, which rested on the bottom, he had just discovered that one foot had five toes while the other had only four, when suddenly the tank seemed full of bullfrogs. It was like a bullfrog fireworks, with bullfrogs flying and tumbling in all directions at once for just one moment, and then everything was still again, and anybody not an expert in bullfrogs who had seen this bullfrog in its new attitude over on the other side of the tank, motionless as an image, would have thought that it had been standing there since last autumn and was going to stand there till next fall, at least.—New York Sun.

Grant's Indifference.

General Sherman, illustrating the difference between his own mental and moral makeup and General Grant's, said:

"When I have arranged my plans and made my dispositions for a battle, I am anxious about what the enemy may be doing on the other side of the hills. But Grant, after he has made his arrangement, don't care a penny for what the other side is doing."

A story told by Senator Jones of Nevada and reported in Mr. Willard's "Half a Century With Judges and Lawyers" shows General Grant as self-reliant in private life as he was in military.

The general, while walking out in the suburbs of Washington, frequently met a butcher driving a horse to which he took a strong liking. After much negotiation he bought the animal and had it taken to his stable, where one day Senators Conkling and Jones were invited to look at the new purchase.

"Well, gentlemen, how do you like the horse?" asked Grant after the animal had been inspected.

"How much did you give for him, Mr. President?" asked Conkling.

"Four hundred dollars."

"I'd rather have the $400 than the horse," rejoined Conkling.

"That's what the butcher thought," coolly remarked Grant, pulling out a cloud of smoke. "Put him back into the stall, John."

His Ram Rations.

W. J. H. Nourse of Boston, who was a member of General Wolsley's Nile expedition of 1881, tells some interesting stories about it. "Every evening," he says, "we had a ration of Jamaican rum served to us. At first we were allowed to carry off our gill, but the men got to saving it up in a bottle for a blow out, and so we were made to drink it on the spot. In our command were five men named Pratt—not one of them related. Four were temperance men and would not take their rum. But Johnny Pratt had no such scruples, and every time 'Pratt' was called he would stop up and get the gill. Five gills gave him a pretty good edge, and one day he went up to George Pratt. 'Shay, George, have you any brothers?' he inquired. 'Yes, four,' was the answer. 'Why in thunder didn't they enlist?' Later on, however, several of the other Pratt went into natural history and picked scorpions and similar reptiles and insects in their ram rations. This Johnny never approved of. It cut off four-fifths of his supplies."

Ingenuous.

Mr. Stilly—Really, Miss Chatter, I don't see how you find so much to talk about. I am very glad to have been introduced to you. It is a pleasure to hear an original person talk.

Miss Chatter—Yes. Our hostess said she thought we would get on nicely together. I think people of opposite characteristics are always likely to be congenial, don't you?—Detroit Free Press.

together form a region for the home-

The Potlatch country is like unto the Palouse, and adjoins it on the east.
The Nez Perce region lies south of the others and has until recently been a

TELEGRAPH POKER.

A TALE IN WHICH A DOG'S TAIL PLAYS AN IMPORTANT PART.

How Operator Tanquary Was Enabled to Retrieve His Losses and Walk Away With
All the Capital of the Three Confident Denver Gamblers.

If people must tell telegraph stories, why not tell truthful and reasonable ones—such as are susceptible of proof? For instance, why has nobody thought it worth while to tell the world about Tanquary's dog?
There is a narrative—beautiful, chaste and instructive and one to which every operator on the Denver and Rio Grande from Denver to Pueblo will swear. The facts are simple and elevating. Tanquary was an operator at Graneros, Colo., a metropolis made up of a freight car, set off at one side of the road for use as a telegraph office, and the house of the section foreman. Sundry coyotes and other wild fowl raised their voices in insurrection in the night, and the sand and rocks baked and quivered in the day. And Tanquary got lonesome. Perhaps sent him a dog—a mean looking animal of mingled breeding,
mostly bad, and with a tail of the length, breadth and thickness of a banana. But he was welcome to Tanquary, who didn't even have an occasional tramp to shoot at or any other permissible means of relaxation. Tanquary taught the dog to go to the section foreman's house, where he boarded, and fetch his lunch, although at first the dog was inclined to make a Roman holiday of the food, causing Tanquary much irritation and fatigue from beating him. The operator taught the dog to stand on his head, to leap sidewise, to chew tobacco and some other accomplishments. And on his own account the dog secretly set to work to learn other things,
of which Tanquary knew nothing.

The two were much attached to each other, as is the case always with people of similar habits—so much so that when Tanquary went on his customary semi-annual trip north to see if Denver was still there and help to renovate, reconstruct and paint it he took the dog along. They had sundry adventures, which may be passed over in silence and sorrow, and finally brought up in a poker game behind a barber shop in Wauzeu street, three other strangers having decided to gather in the telegrapher's six months' salary. They played with great energy and unconscion-ably until the railroad man had reached the dregs of his pocketbook. He looked about him in sorrow, and his eyes fell on his dog, which had taken a position on a chair across the room and which seemed to be much interested.

"If you people are sports," said Tan,
"you'll let me put that dog in against a dollar's worth of excitement, and we will go it a little longer." Then he told of the accomplishments of the dog and put him through a few tricks. The dog seemed to be worried about it, and you could see he was not at all satisfied with his new duty of masquerading as a jack pot. The three sports, being satisfied with the animal's educational advantages, acceded to the operator's request.

Whereupon the game became one of life and death. Tanquary after the draw found himself possessed of two kings and the same number of tens. All but one of the strangers fell by the wayside, and Tan was getting worried about the single opponent he had, for the fellow had held up three cards. The operator weighed his hand, looked at it, felt it and tested it by all his other senses, for he didn't want to fritter away his dog on nothing. Suddenly he heard a sound as of the falling of manna. His telegraphic ear caught from some mysterious source these Morse characters:

Tanquary was one of those men who did not inquire into the why and wherefores of Providence. When a miracle was performed the purport of which was to inform him that the other man was bluffing severely on deuces, he accepted it without cavil and played back with all his strength. The result was that he garnered $2.35 on that pot and was stalked for the next deal. They started in again. Tan got three kings. He was inclined to bet like an amateur in the hands of a tout at a race track, but suddenly across his organ
of hearing came the low, mullen statement:

Tanquary cast a hurried and startled glance about to see if the angel and minister of grace would make himself visible as well as audible, but saw nothing of the kind. Nevertheless, he threw down his kings, losing 10 cents. On the next hand he reaped $12 on a split manifestation by telegraph of a pair of fives in one man's hand, a bohtal flush in that of another and two pairs, kings up, in that of the third, while he himself had three small threes. As the night progressed the operator grew in wealth, until one by one the three sports fell by the wayside, and in the gray of the morning the man from Graneros gathered up $1,713.50 and rose to go.

"Well," started one of the three foun-ten, the last to succumb, "I hope that now you have money enough to buy that infernal dog of yours some grub. He has been standing up there on that chair wagging his measly stub of a three inch tail and pounding against the woodwork with it all the night in anticipation of the feed your winnings would buy him."

Tanquary looked up in a rather startled way, for a great truth was dawning upon him. It was true. The dog had stood for five hours on the chair to the rear of the other men, and the operator saw that his small, stiff tail was sandwiched between two uprights belonging to the back of the furniture. As he looked the tail took on action and this message was borne to him:

And with a devout look of thanksgiving
the Graneros personage murmured, "No,
we didn't do a thing to them."—Chicago Record.

THESE BELIEVE IN MATRIMONY.

The Women Who, Marrying in haste or in Leisure, Never Repent.

Four mothers were discussing the prosent training and possible futures of their children.

"The height of my ambition," said the first, "is to get my four daughters married by the time they are 18."

"Yes," chimed in the second, "Dr.
Parkhurst is exactly right. There is no career like marriage for a woman."

"If I didn't think there was a good man growing up somewhere for my little girl, I would be miserable," said No. 3 as she patted the golden curls of a tiny maiden
at her knee.

"You are right. No woman doctors and woman lawyers for me," said the fourth matron, with dignified emphasis.

To any one familiar with the histories of these women their opinions would furnish food for serious reflection. The first speaker had married a man who had never made a living for his family, except in rare and brief intervals of good luck.
From the influence of her maiden days she had descended to such depths of poverty that at one time she was forced to sell cakes on the streets to keep her children from starving.

The husband of the second was a man whose salary gave his family a comfortable living for the first ten years of their married life, but he was stricken with paralysis before the prime of life. The oldest child, a boy of great promise, died at the age of 12, the father followed him in a few years, and the wife was left to support three young children and herself as best she could.

The third was the widow of a brilliant professional man. She had $30,000 in her own right. Her husband ran for some office, was defeated, took to gambling and drinking and died of delirium tremens in a few years. She, too, had to solve the problem of making a living for herself and two small children.

The fourth woman had married rather late in life a widower of small means and mediocre talents, and after six years of wedded life she had put on widow's weeds and entered the lists of the breadwinners on behalf of four children, all girls, and one of them a helpless idiot.

All four had laid health, beauty and happiness on the shrine of Hymen, yet not one could be induced to declare marriage
a failure, and all were anxious to secure husbands for their daughters. These women represent the hopelessly conservative class—a class that will always exist, no matter how much women may be emancipated, and that will continue to furnish long suffering wives to the sons of men as long as the sons of men choose to marry. No possibility or even certainty of disaster can deter them from matrimony. It is their vocation, and they enter it as trustfully and devoutly as those who take the black veil.—New York Times.

Bronze Wire.

In Germany for many years past bronze wire has been in use for telephone lines on account of its conductivity being superior to that of iron or steel wires. Besides bronze wires covered with a copper, a number of German makers have also brought out numerous double metal wires, under the name of compound wire, bimetallic wire, double metal wire, double bronze wire, patent bronze wire, etc.
These wires have a core of steel or aluminum bronze, with a high tensile strength, and are covered with copper or bronze of a high conductivity and experiments with these wires having been made with a view to comparing them with bronze wire for telephonic purposes, the results are claimed to show that they have important properties available in that way. It is stated, for example, that a telephone line with a bimetallic conductor will work much more perfectly than with a conductor of a single metal, such as copper—less insulation, too,
is said to be needed for such a conductor
than for copper or any material, and hence such wires laid on the earth without special insulation permit a telephonic connection to a much greater distance. The final experiments in this line, however, are to the effect that the double metal wires are really no more valuable than the pure copper wire, but that the distance to which telephonic transmission by bare wires laid upon the earth is possible depends mainly upon the size and weight of the wires, presuming all the conditions are similar.

Early Public Lotteries.

Probably the first public lottery ever held took place in England in 1567, says an exchange, when 40,000 chances were sold at 10 shillings each, the prizes consisting chiefly of plate and the profits going for the repair of certain harbors. The drawing took place at the west door of St.
Paul's cathedral. In 1612 another lottery took place at St. Paul's. This was for the benefit of the Virginia company. The highest prize was £1,000, and £20,000 profit was gained.

Again, in 1630, a lottery was promoted in order to bring water into London, and after the civil war another lottery helped to replenish an exhausted national exchequer. Private lotteries soon became very common, and being generally conducted on fraudulent principles an act of parliament was passed early in the reign of Queen Anne suppressing them "as public nuisances." In 1694 a loan of £1,000,- 000 was raised by the sale of lottery tickets at 20 shillings, and in 1710 £1,500,000 was raised by £10 tickets, each ticket being entitled to an annuity for 32 years, the blank 14 shillings per annum, the prizes varying from £5 to £1,000 per annum.—

Omitted Two Stanzas.

Gray, the poet, actually omitted two four line stanzas from the "Rogey." According to Mason, the stanzas were omitted by the poet (just before the Epitaph)
because "he thought it was too long a paranthesis." Of the first stanza James Russell Lowell affirmed that "Gray might run his pen through this, but he could not abrogate it from the memory of men. Surely Wordsworth himself," continued the American critic, "never achieved a simplicity of language so pathetic in suggestion, so musical in movement, as this."
The two verses are as follows:

There, scattered o'er the earliest of the year
By lands unseen are showers of violets found.
The railroad loves to build and warble there
And little feet pass lightly print the ground.

Him have we seen the greenwood side along
While o'er the heath we held, our labor done,
Oft as the wood lark piped her farcical song,
With wistful eyes pursue the spring sun.

Baby Could Talk.

Mamma and baby returned from a walk.
"Oh," says mamma to her husband, "such good news! Baby talks. He has just said his first word."
"Really?"

"Yes, just fancy. We were in the zoological gardens, standing before the monkey cage, when baby cried out, 'Look at papa!'"—Pittsburg Bulletin.

DISRAELI ON DARWIN.

The Statesman Declared Himself on the Side of the Angels.

Mr. T. H. S. Escott, author of "Platform, Press, Politics and Play," was present in the Sheldonian theater when Disraeli delivered his famous speech against Darwinism. Disraeli, says Mr. Escott, had been visiting friends in the neighborhood.
Casually, it would seem, or (as perhaps it was) with artistically concealed purpose, he dropped in at a discussion meeting on his way to the railway station.

That which chiefly impressed the admiring youths was his historically unexcelled tongue. A soft white billycock had surmounted his marble brow, over which there still clustered the ringlets that had once been jet black. He wore a short black tailless velvet coat. His nether limbs were incased in knickerbockers, with garters.
At first he spoke in a studiously commonplace strain. Only a few platitudes about lay and clerical intercommunication or the advantages in this respect enjoyed by Oxford escaped his lips. More than once he seemed to have lost the thread of his discourse. These, probably, were his artful or rhetorical feints. Presently, struck, it seemed, by a sudden inspiration,
he warmed to his theme.

First came his description of the national church. This was memorable, because, though it has not, I think, yet been noticed, Disraeli's Oxford words prefigured the policy which ten years later as prime minister, in 1874, he was to embody in his public worship bill. The church, he said, would not be disestablished, but parliament, dithering an "imperium in imperio," would tighten its hold over it. Then followed a series of rattling sentences, verbally prophetic of the profuse written by him many years later for his collected novels. The Broad church party received some airy badinage. Dean (then Canon) Stanley was complimented on his "picturesque sensibility."

Mr. Jowett was indicted as a nebulous professor, who, if he were condemned to read in perpetuity his own works, might gather some idea of that endless punishment which he and his school were said to doubt. Next, epigrammatically summarizing the discussion, Disraeli remarked:
"The question, after all, is whether man is an ape or an angel. As for me, my lords and gentlemen" (here the speaker put his hands into his velvet sack's side pockets and strutting, as one of his Hughenden peacocks might have done, across the platform uttered this startling and historic sentiment), "I am on the side of the angels."

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

If you accept a substitute, you must not fuss because its not as good as genuine HIRE'S Rootbeer.

Heart Disease from Childhood.

From the Journal, Quincy, Illinois.
 Paul Gross, of 624 South Third street, Quincy, Ill., is well known to many of the Journal readers. He is twenty-nine years old, was born and almost raised in Quincy. At present he is watchman on the "People's" ferry boat. Many who have known Paul since infancy know that he has been near death's door several times. Seeing him strong and vigorous, the writer asked him the other evening what physician had cured him. His reply astonished us. This is what he said:

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are my doctor. They beat all the physicians in the country."

When asked if he would object to the Journal publishing an account of his case, Mr. Gross replied:

"Not a bit. I would be glad if you would tell what Pink Pills did for me—it might be the means of relieving others who suffer as I suffered."

"I had heart disease; of course you know that. When a child I had palpitation of the heart, and in after years all the complications that heart disease produces. At first the palpitations were not serious for they would last only a few seconds, but as I grew older the palpitations gradually grew worse until they would completely prostrate me. These palpitations would sometimes last thirty minutes, the blood would rush to my head, and I would become so dizzy and my sight become so dimmed that I could not define any object before me. I could hardly get my breath, and it seemed to me that my heart would burst. At times I thought that I was dying. When my heart failed to do its work properly my blood became impure and that caused other troubles."

"I doctored with first one physician and then another, but the doctors only aggravated the disease. One day, two years ago, I saw an article concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper, and I made up my mind to try them—I think the Lord that I did. I took three boxes of the Pink Pills. They not only relieved me, but completely stopped the palpitations and restored me to a state of general health of which I was proud."

"I believed that I was entirely cured, but after about eighteen months I noticed a slight fullness of the heart. I at once got a box of the Pink Pills which effectually removed this trouble, and I firmly believe that had I taken six boxes of the pills instead of three in the first place, I would never have experienced this 'fullness.' As a blood purifier and as a tonic, I know of nothing that can equal these pills."

"You can say in the Journal that Paul Gross desires all people to try Pink Pills, for I would be glad if others could be blessed as I have been blessed."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

HUMORISTS' CORNER.

SUMMER SALAD FOR OUR LEAN READERS.

June Days at the Seashore.—At the Aquarium—An Intention or Farmer Chickweed's Clever Mistake—Marriage a Lottery—Wit and Satire.

OW soon the festive season will return, When, by the calling sea, The youth who has a slender roll to burn Cremates it speedily.

And, like as not, beside him and his pyre A vestal priestess stands, To bask a moment in the fitful fire That flickers on the sands.

Bravely it waxes through the summer day, Then, 'neath the fading sky, Alone he watches for a fading ray Where only ashes lie.

And then, communing with his stricken soul, He dreams, with many a gulp, What might have been his fate if but his roll Had been asbestos pulp!

Marriage a Lottery.
 He looked happy enough as he walked up to the post-office box, set a huge bundle on the floor and began taking pretty square envelopes therefrom dropping them by twos and threes in the box.

"Big lot of letters," remarked the policeman. "Nice day, too."

"Letters!" said the happy man. "My dear fellow, those are not letters. They are wedding invitations."

A stern look came over the face of the hitherto friendly policeman.

"My friend," he said, "I am sorry to disturb you. But I must do my duty. Come with me."

"Arrested?"

"Yes."

"On what charge, sir? This is an outrage."

"Not at all. You are advertising a lottery through the mails."

The man went along.

What the Lovers Said.
 Shall I tell you what the lover said, As closely by her side he sat, And stroked the curls upon her head? There is no need to tell you that.

Shall I whisper what she said to him, As at the door the lovers stood, While somewhere near her papa grim Drew closer? Not I never could.

And when at length her pa abused With kicks the youth—and did not stint 'em Shall I write the words that lover used? I'd like to but they wouldn't print 'em.

First on the Ground.
 There was a sound of shrieking canvas and a boom of escaping gas. The car of the balloon was overturned, and down, down through the ether went the aeronaut and his party of information-seekers.

The reporter was the first to alight. "First on the ground, anyway!" he remarked, and, taking out his notebook and pencil, he proceeded to write up an account of the accident.

Money Converses.
 A miser sat alone with his gold. For years he had lived the life of a hermit. Scarce seeing the light of the sun, knowing naught of what went on in the outer world, the miser was still happy. He was alone with his gold. 'Twas long, long since he had heard the sound of a human voice. Did he miss it? No. Money talks.

A Thing Self-Evident.
 "In buying a hat," said the philosopher, pausing in the busy street as the thought occurred to him, "I suppose I ought to be careful to get the new spring's tile."

And then laughing softly to himself he resumed the struggle with the world that philosophers have to make in order to get along.

Farmer Whitesheet—Gee whiz, Gloria! Ain't that funny red fish?" Gloria Ann—Yes, paw, these fish were caught in the Red Sea.

She Will Fill 'Em.
 When Gracie's bloomers shrank from a shower that they drank did she give 'em to her little brother? Nit. For down at Coney Isle, where she sports so free from guile, as a bathing suit they'll be a perfect fit.—Ex.

SENT TO FORTUNE

Mrs. Alice Dover of Kenwood
 Now a Wealthy Widow.

PALMISTRY IS PRACTICAL

Frank T. Dover Notified of His Impending Death by Sir Henry Onequi of 39 Congress St., Chicago.

Frank T. Dover had faith in a professor of palmistry, acted on his advice and, as a consequence, left his widow with $100,000. Insurance instead of being a pauper. Mr. Dover was mortally injured in a street car accident and died from his injuries on Wednesday night at his home on Forty-third street.

Mr. Dover was an inventor who came to Chicago from the west six months ago to interest capital in one of his inventions, but met with poor success. He lost all his money and went to work in an office. A week ago he had a windfall which he thought would be sufficient to put his scheme on its feet. He was a little skeptical on account of previous failures and consulted Sir Henry Onequi, a palmist. Sir Henry made a careful study of the case, encouraged Dover in his project, but told him he had not long to live; that he was destined to be killed in an accident within five days. He urged the inventor, therefore, to insure his life for an amount that would leave his widow comfortable.

With an insurance agent he visited again the office of Sir Henry Onequi. He did not fully decide to do it, but wanted further assurance that it was necessary. The palmist offered to pay the premium for a half interest in the amount of the policy. This decided Mr. Dover and the policy was written up.

The affairs of the company which was to bring out Mr. Dover's invention prospered the next day, and Mr. Dover, somewhat elated went out with some friends. The party broke up an early hour, and while on his way home Mr. Dover fell under the wheels of the car he tried to board. He died the next day.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Wood for Paper.

The enormous amount of wood used every year for the purpose of making paper may be estimated from the fact that the Petit Journal of Paris, which has a circulation of over one million copies a day and is printed on wood pulp paper, consumes in a year, 120,000 fir trees of an average height of sixty-six feet. This is equivalent to the annual thinning of 25,000 acres of forest land.

Charity Increases Vice.

It is charged by responsible people that the buildings in which the 13,000 pauper children of London are taught are hotbeds of disease and forcing-houses of vice and continued pauperism. It is also said that the same thing is true of the 242,000 pauper children of England and Wales.

TIRED SALESWOMEN

Employers Should Be More Considerate of Their Health.

Interesting Statement by a Young Lady in Brooklyn.

In the vast retail establishments of large cities, many women are employed as saleswomen. Men formerly held the positions that women now hold, and while women's organization is less strong than men's they are expected to do the same work. Their duties compel them to be on their feet from morning to night, and many of them, in a short time, contract these distressing complaints called "female diseases."

Then occur irregularities, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, indigestion, leucorrhoea, general debility and nervous prostration.

They are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness.

In such cases there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. The following is a sample:

"My dear Mrs. Pinkham:—After writing you, and before your answer came, I was too miserable to go to the store, and so lost my position. That was five weeks ago. I am now back again in my old place, and never felt so well in all my life. The bearing-down pains and whites have left me, and I am not a bit nervous or blue. Life looks brighter to me. I don't get tired, my temper is real sweet, and I could scream right out sometimes for joy. Your Vegetable Compound is my standby. You don't know how thankful I am to you for saving me from suffering. Every woman in my position should know of your wonderful remedy. I never saw you, but I love you for being so good to me."

Rutabagas for Fodder.

It is gratifying to see so many American farmers putting their waste places or spare pieces of land into rutabagas and turnips for early fall or long winter feeding. They are getting the European idea of root crops. There the turnips and rutabagas are sown broadcast as are almost all grains, and if not desired as roots, the foliage then is fed for green food. Just imagine the results of a twenty-acre outpatch treated in this way! Think of the tremendous amount of green fodder, magnificent fodder too, coming into full play during hot August and September. Why, a field of rutabagas and turnips, there, for cattle food is worth almost as much as the oats gathered therefrom! Another good plan is to sow rutabaga seed, especially the variety known as Salzer's LaCrosse, Wis., Mammoth Russian variety, or his Milk Globe turnip sort, at the rate of one-half pound per acre, into the cornfield, just before the last cultivation. This will give you two good crops—one of corn, the other of roots from the same land! One advantage of the rutabaga is that it can be sown at any time of the summer for green food, while a sowing the latter part of July is the best in northern states for big, sweet, juicy roots for winter storage and use.

Got Even With Him.

A Congregational church society in Fair Haven East, Conn., voted to reduce the salary of its pastor from $2,500 to $2,000. Then, on a protest from some of the members, the salary was restored, and the clergyman was charged $100 rent for the parsonage, which he had previously occupied free.

Columbia Bicycles

Facts Popularity does not come without cause. Nothing but the standard quality that is invariably maintained in Columbia Bicycles could secure such indorsement as comes unsought to Columbias.

EVERYBODY'S CHOICE When The New York Journal offered the choice of the ten leading makes of bicycles recently to the ten winners of a guessing contest, every one of the ten selected Columbia. And The Journal bought ten Columbias at $100 each.

TIFFANY'S CHOICE When Tiffany & Co., the famous jewelers, desired to make an experiment with elaborate decoration of bicycles, they of course first selected a Columbia—and paid $100 for it. They have decorated other bicycles since, but Columbia was first choice.

When the United States Government recently asked for proposals for furnishing five bicycles, it received bids from other makers of from $50 to $85 and our bid of $100 each for Columbia, their invariable price. And the experts selected Columbia, as in their opinion Columbias were worth every dollar of the price asked.
